Vegetarianism is increasing in the UK as more and more British people are deciding not to eat meat and animal products. According to the UK Vegetarian Society, two thousand people are giving up meat and ‘going veggie’ in Britain every week.

Vegetarians and vegans

In 1989 a research showed that three per cent of the UK’s population was vegetarian. A more recent research put it at 5.7 per cent. This means there are over three million vegetarians in the UK today.

Vegetarians (people who don’t eat meat) and vegans (people who don’t eat or use any animal products) are both becoming increasingly common in UK culture. Visit a British supermarket and you will see a wide range of vegetarian materials and prepared meals on the shelves, including vegetarian sausages, vegan cheese (it doesn’t contain milk!) and meat-free burgers.

A healthy diet

So why are British people cutting out meat from their diets? Many vegetarians and vegans choose not to eat meat or animal products for different reasons. They are unhappy about the bad treatment of the animals and the effects of meat and fish production on the environment. Worries about food safety (for example BSE, or ‘mad cow disease’, as it is commonly known) cause many people to stop eating meat. Others choose to change their diet to improve their general health. According to the Vegetarian Society, a meat-free diet could help decrease the risk of certain cancers and the possibility of heart disease, as well as other health problems such as fatness and high blood pressure.

49. Vegetarianism is becoming more popular in Britain.                      a) True                      b) False

52. A meat-free diet can increase the possibility of heart disease.                      a) True                      b) False
53. What’s the main idea of the last paragraph?
- a) The reasons to protect the animals
  - b) Because eating meat causes serious health problems
  - c) Because the meat sold in Britain isn’t safe.
  - d) The reason why British people are cutting out meat from their diet
54. What’s the difference between vegetarians and vegans?
